

It's Not Your Fault

Marketing & Sales Opportunity

The demand is large, growing, and evergreen — and the real profit sits in channels most self-published authors never work. This is where the money is, in priority order.

~53M

U.S. family caregivers — the core buyer

~10,000

Americans turn 65 every day

~7M

living with Alzheimer's / dementia

Figures are approximate, industry-standard orders of magnitude. The point isn't the decimal — it's that this market compounds for the next two decades, and the book is crisis-purchased and non-seasonal (bought the night of the fall, the diagnosis, the discharge call). Steady year-round demand, not a launch spike.

1 B2B & bulk — the biggest lever, and most authors miss it

The professionals who advise caregivers will buy in cases to give away:

- Elder-law & estate-planning attorneys — the primary partner; your Ch. 14 & 22 content makes the book their favorite client handout
- Financial advisors, fiduciaries, and CPAs serving older clients and their families
- Aging Life Care managers (geriatric care managers) and elder mediators
- Employers — caregiver support is a fast-growing workplace benefit; HR and EAPs buy these
- Churches, support groups, senior centers, and libraries

WHY IT WINS

Your CDP credential and bedside career open these doors. One firm relationship can outsell months of Amazon. Needs a one-page sell sheet + bulk pricing.

STEER CLEAR

Not home-health or hospice agencies. They're Medicare-billing providers, so referral-linked book arrangements carry anti-kickback sensitivity — and it's your own field. Keep partners to advisors and counsel, who don't have that exposure.

2 The series & funnel — recurring revenue, not one-and-done

The pieces already exist:

- State companion guides — NC, FL, VA, SC started → 50 states = 50 products, each a fresh local sale

- The memoir, The Cardinal's Promise, cross-sells to the same readers
- Free worksheet download at thecardinalspromise.com → email capture (your Kit account is connected) → nurture → sell the book, then the state guide, then the next thing

COMPOUNDING That funnel is how a $17 book becomes a $100+ customer — and the backlist keeps selling with no new ad spend.

3 Direct-to-consumer — the baseline

Amazon (KDP), the website, and the drafted social posts. Necessary and steady, but the lowest-margin lane. Don't judge the whole opportunity by Amazon rank alone.

4 Monetize every format

Paperback (premium color) · ebook (built) · audiobook — the narration script is already written; ACX/Audible is a real revenue stream for this audience · a possible large-print edition (older buyers) · a bulk/workbook SKU.

5 Honest economics

POD royalties are thin — premium color eats margin, so per-unit Amazon profit is modest. Real profit comes from bulk / wholesale (or an offset run at volume), the series & backlist, the audiobook, and B2B. Plan around those, not around a bestseller badge.

6 The moat

An emotional title that stops the scroll + a practical, color-coded workbook + a credentialed hospice author + local, state-level specificity that no national competitor (e.g., The 36-Hour Day) offers. That combination is hard to copy.

★ First 90 days — suggested sequence

- 1 Launch on KDP — listing, categories, keywords, first reviews. Get it live.
- 2 Stand up the email funnel — free worksheet → welcome sequence in Kit. Highest ROI, uses assets you already have.
- 3 Build a B2B sell sheet + bulk pricing and pitch 10 local agencies, attorneys, and advisors.
- 4 Produce the audiobook from the existing script.
- 5 Roll out state guides one at a time, each doubling as a lead magnet.
